

Abstract of the Disclosure

A device for monitoring the superstructure state especially of fixed railroad tracks, with a height sensor system, which is installed in a measuring vehicle, preferably constructed as a laser scanning system, for determining the height position of an anchor clamp and/or of the base of a rail and/or of a railroad tie.